

Prof. Dr.-Ing. Dr.h.c. mult János J. Bogárdi

Bogardi.Janos@nke-uni.hu

Active in different areas of water resources management, water education and awareness raising, disaster risk assessment and environmental migration. Over 250 publications.

Graduated as civil engineer (agricultural water resources management), Technical University of Budapest, 1969. Postgraduate diploma in hydrology, University of Padova, Italy, 1971. Doctor of Engineering (water resources management) University of Karlsruhe, Germany, 1979.

Research and consultancy in Hungary, Germany and several African states (1969 – 1985). Associate Professor, Asian Institute of Technology (1985-1988), Chair Professor for Hydrology, Hydraulics and Water Resources Management, Wageningen Agricultural University (1989 – 1995), Senior Programme Specialist International Hydrological Programme, UNESCO, Paris (1995 – 2003), Founding Director of the United Nations University Institute for Environment and Human Security, Bonn, Germany, (2003 -2009), Executive Officer, Global Water System Project, University of Bonn (2009 – 2012). Coordinator of the UNEP Project International Water Quality Guideline for Ecosystems (IWQGES) (2012 – 2016). Corresponding Editor of the Handbook of Water Resources Management: Discourses, Concepts and Examples (2016 – 2021).

At present: Co-opted professor of the University of Bonn, Faculty of Agriculture since 2004, Senior fellow, Center for Development Research, University of Bonn, Germany, since 2012, Fellow of the Stellenbosch Institute of Advanced Study, South Africa, since 2014, distinguished adjunct professor, Asian Institute of Technology, Pathumthani, Thailand since 2015, senior scientific advisor Institute of Advanced Studies, Kőszeg, Hungary since 2017, visiting professor, Universidad Autonoma del Estado de Hidalgo, Pachuca, Mexico since 2022. Since 1 August 2023 research professor of Ludovika University for the Public Service, Budapest.